Chapter 1 by Arina Crăciun

Arcurion Cave

Thousands of years ago the world was ruled by big and powerful dragons. They lived together with the humans for a long time. And the only ones who did not want to live on the same earth with them were the orcs and the goblins. Those two races believed that they were the rulers of the world but the dragons shattered this belief.

The dragons' land, Dreadscale, was far away from the goblins and orcs' one. It was full with dragons and fairies, magic and welfare. The fairies were attacked by goblins long time ago. The dragons couldn't let them lose and gave them help. For their action, the fairies swore to be next to them and to fight alongside them.

The leader of dragons, Flamegor, decided to call a priest from the humans to learn them about humans' land. He was allowed to bring his family on Dreadscale. The priest and his family learnt to live with the dragons, their habits and started to understand them. The Cynbel priest decided to write their history. Flamegor agreed and told him more stories. Also he decided to tell the priest their connection with the humans. They tamed and led them into battles years ago. Flamegor actually had a human that tamed him. They fought together in the hardest wars and always won. Yet, the fiercest enemy of the dragons killed Flamegor's warrior, Griff. After the commander of orcs killed him, a period of time Flamegor couldn't fly, suffering after the loss of his rider. He recovered after 2 years of being alone in his cave, Arcurion, he refused to fight or to talk with anybody. But someone convinced him to get out and help the dragons

Shortly, Dreadscale was taken by the humans, but without any doubts about the history of the place.

Flamegor had four successors born during the blue light. This meaning they were very powerful.

The goblins sent a spy in Brimstone Pass, the new land of the dragons. When he came back, the goblins found out about the four eggs and decided to don't let some dragons to put their existance in danger. So they used an orc mage to cast a spell against the dragons. The spell took the power of flying of the dragons and fairies. The dragons woke up in the middle of an attack. Flamegor realised the eggs were in danger and pleased a dragon to take them away to Dreadscale. Unfortunately, the spell touched him too and goblins stole the eggs. Flamegor and the other dragons were killed and the fairies were cursed to never fly again. Cynbel and his family escaped and ran to Dreadscale. They were found by humans in the Forest of Fairies. The family was taken to the city and healed. Afer the priest told them the story, the humans started a war against the goblins.
